Let's get started. I have a little extra information about that other mini-story with Brad Pitt.

* * * * *

So as you know, Brad Pitt was rich, successful and handsome, but he was unhappy. But I have extra information, extra information about what happened before that story. Because many years ago, before that story, Brad Pitt had actually been quite happy. He had actually been quite happy. He had been happy, but he wasn't successful. He had been happy, but he wasn't so handsome. He had been happy, but he was poor.

So before that story happened, Brad Pitt had been quite happy for a while in his life when he was a child. And continuing up until about the year 2000, Brad Pitt had been very, very happy.

Now who had been very, very happy?

Brad Pitt, of course. Brad Pitt had been very, very happy before that story.

And what about Tomoe? Had she been happy before that original story?

Sure. Now Tomoe had been happy before that story and she was happy during that story and she's still happy now.

So Tomoe had always been happy and she has always been happy, all her life. But Brad Pitt, that's not the case. Brad Pitt had been happy then he became unhappy and then finally at the end of the original story he became happy again.

Now what about Brad Pitt's dog? Hum...

What is the name of Brad Pitt's dog?

Well, the name of Brad Pitt's dog is George. George is Brad Pitt's dog.

Now today George is very, very happy. He's a very, very, super happy dog. And during the original story, starting around the year 2000, Brad Pitt's dog was a very, very happy dog, but here's some interesting information. Before that story George, Brad Pitt's dog, had been extremely unhappy.

Why? Why had he been so unhappy before that story started?

Well, he had been so unhappy because for years he had loved Brad Pitt, he had loved Brad Pitt, but he had never met Brad Pitt. You see, George was a homeless dog before he met Brad Pitt. Poor George.

Had George been happy before he met Brad Pitt?

No, he hadn't. He had not been happy before he met Brad Pitt.

Now, was he happy after he met Brad Pitt and after he became Brad Pitt's dog?

Oh, yes, of course. After he met Brad Pitt, after he became Brad Pitt's dog oh, he was so, so happy and he's still happy now, but he had been very, very unhappy before he met Brad Pitt.

Why had he been so unhappy?

Two reasons: one, because he had been homeless before he met Brad Pitt and, number two, he had loved Brad Pitt for many years. He had wanted to meet Brad Pitt. He had wanted to become Brad Pitt's dog, but he had never been able to meet Brad Pitt in the past, in the far past.

Until one day in the year 2000 George finally got his chance. George went to a movie premiere -- the first showing of a movie -- with Brad Pitt. And he saw Brad Pitt coming from a limousine into the movie theatre and he jumped out and he jumped on Brad Pitt and he said, "Brad, I love you! Please let me be your doggie! Ha-ha-ha-ha-ha."

Now on that day was George a happy, happy dog?

Oh, yes. On that day, in the year 2000, at the movie premiere, George became a super happy dog.

Now what did George say to Brad Pitt?

So, that is the end of our Bonus Mini-Story lesson. You can see we are playing with grammar a little bit. Do not think about grammar rules. All you need to do is listen to the story and understand the meaning and also focus on those phrases that I give you, the time phrases.

For example, since 2000, in the year 2000, before that day, before the year 2000, now, right? Those time phrases, those time words. Plus, the changes in the vocabulary, the changes in the verbs, will help you understand the grammar intuitively, subconsciously, effortlessly, easily.

So just understand the meaning, just answer the questions. You can pause if you need to. If it's too fast just pause and shout your answers and listen, listen, listen and understand. You can read the text if that helps you. If you don't need the text then just listen that's probably better. In this way you will learn the grammar naturally, intuitively, subconsciously, automatically and effortlessly. Do not think about the rules, just understand and listen to the story every day.

One more thing, remember, confidence is so important. When you listen to this story, when you listen to anything from me, when you listen to any English, always have your shoulders back and always have your chin and your head up, always be smiling a big, stupid smile on your face, feeling happy.

When you answer the questions shout your answers and use your body, your whole body when you answer. Move your body when you answer. Say yes, no, he was happy, I don't know. Okay? Whatever you answer it's okay, but use strong energy, strong confidence, and strong voice. Keep your head up, your chin up and a big smile. This is so important. This is the fuel. This is the gasoline for the Effortless English motor. You have to give that emotional gasoline, that emotional fuel.

Okay. So remember, listen to this mini-story every day, listen to the original mini-story every day, listen to the point of view stories every day, listen to the commentary every day and, if you can, watch that video lesson every day. And just as important...just as importantly...be sure to use the leadership skills you're learning. Practice gratitude and appreciation, practice contribution, so, so important. Together we will help other people. Together we will help so many other people.
